DUNCAN HARRISON JR. JOINS CHSOFNJ AS CHIEF ADVANCEMENT OFFICER

The Children's Home Society of New Jersey (CHSofNJ), a cornerstone of child and family services in the state for more than 130 years, proudly announces the appointment of Duncan Harrison Jr. as its new Chief Advancement Officer. Duncan joins the organization at a pivotal time as CHSofNJ builds on more than a century of service to children and families across New Jersey.

"I am honored to join CHSofNJ at such a critical and hopeful time. This organization has been a lifeline for generations of families. I look forward to working alongside a dedicated team and community to elevate our mission, expand our impact, and continue to build a sustainable future for families in need." Most recently, Duncan served as the Assistant Director of Regional Affairs at Princeton University. Throughout his 20+ year career, Duncan has helped accelerate systems transformation and is recognized for his ability to lead with purpose, mobilize support, and bridge common and uncommon partners.

To mark this new chapter, we invite supporters, partners, and community champions to join us in advancing our mission. Your contribution helps ensure every child can grow up safe, supported, and strong. Visit chsofnj.org/donate to make your gift or explore volunteer opportunities and be part of something truly transformational.

“ We are thrilled to welcome Duncan to our leadership team during this exciting time of growth and renewal at CHSofNJ,” said Julie Dees, Chief Executive Officer. “His deep expertise, passion for our mission, and strong ties to the Trenton community and beyond make him uniquely positioned to help lead us forward. His appointment reflects our commitment to strengthening our human infrastructure, diversifying our revenue streams, and building lasting relationships that fuel our mission. As we invest in the future of our agency, Duncan’s leadership will help ensure the sustainability and expansion of our work on behalf of New Jersey’s children and families.” **”
